courtesy, of official etiquette, for a member of the Cabinet to rettre at the beck of the Exceutive, in case of a want of consounce of views or unity of purpose. It is a matter of simple duty, a duty, rather, we should say, of transcendent obligation which is now devolved upon Mr. Stanton. He is, in his own person to day, the representative of Congress, the champion of the cause of liberty, the servant at the people. He could not rethe from his post without jeopardiz-ing the public interests and surrendering the principles of the great party which is now arrayed against the President. Better that Sheridan, Pope, Sickles, one and all, be enerified, than Dietstor in this National crisis. Let Stanton stand firm and between a jot of his just rights and pretensions. Such action will of course exasperate the President, and lead him to crown the measure of "his high crimes and misdemean ors" and will only the more precipitate and en-sure his impeachment. He who shall invent the best petroleum burner is likely to have a patent as valuable as that of Petroleum as a Substitute for Coal. the sawing machine, and we may expect to see a great deal of legal controversy about the priority of rights, intringements, &c., as well as heated public discussion as to the relative merits and comparative utility of different burners. But good will come of it to the public at large; greater simplicity, certainty and economy will result from the ingenuity thus called into exerclse and expended upon the subject. Capital is proverbially shy, suspicious, skeptical and conservative, but when once it is demonstrated be yond cavil that the petroleum burner is a success, s a steam generator, that it is equally safe and for more economical than other fuel, then it will he an easy task to enlist capital. It is impossible to measure the value of such an invention as this, when we consider that it may be applied to ls, to locomotives and to stationary engines three great departments of commercial and industrial activity as wide as the whole earth,-The New York Bulletin justly observes:

"The experiments recently made to test the value of petroleum as a substitute for coal on steamers, vessels and locomotives, have proved so far successful that its general use in the capacity may be regarded as a question of time and convenience. It appears to have been demon-strated that petroleum is capable of producing a more regular and intense heat than coal and that tion to space. Any one of these qualities would go far toward effecting the general introduction of petrolema, but combined they constitute a strong plea in favor of its use. The difference the stowage of quantities of petroleum and coal required to produce the same given effeet is quite important, being nearly two-thirds as the innacuse quantity of space regulred for of freight and other charges. The chief draw back to the introduction of petroleum as a substitute for coal is its greater liability to explo sion. If this difficulty can be obviated by future discoveries and improvements, the chief objection to its use for almost every purpose for which coal is now required will soon disappear.

The experiments already made have exercised a marked influence on the market. Of late the supply has been in excess of the demand, and prices were reduced to rates that left production no longer profitable. There was a general stagpation at the oil region, and the trade was dull with gloomy prospects for the future. But the probability of a new market for the great staple of Pennsylvania has imparted new activity to the this volume the discussions in the Church of trade, and prices have advanced within the past England and of Scotland, the fluctuations of few weeks to rates that have produced a cheerful condition of affairs in the Oll Regions.-Work has been resumed on wells that were about doned as being no longer profitable; many new lively fall trade are good. The production is now probably nearly up to the average of forme

Whether this activity in the oil trade is likely to be sustained, remains to be seen. But there the 28th all, in the 85th year of his age. He has of steam engines may be required before it can resided in Exegertown for thirty-seven years, and become a safe and destrable substitute for each But the attention of mechanics and scientific men having been directed to the antiquet, we may reasonably look for further discoveries and improvements that will still further utilize one of the chengest and most widely diffused produc-tions of nature for the higher purposes of civilization. There seems to be almost no limit to the production of oil. It has been discovered in countries and places that render it universally available, and we may safely anticipate that the full value of this last and best gift of nature to man has not yet been fully developed. It is an important and significant fact that petroleum and he new uses for which it may be applied, should be discovered just in time to aling the fears that begin to pravail in England respecting the ex-haustion of the coal fields of that country. This would seem to show that the forces of nature are only limited by the knowledge and expanity of

> REDUCTION OF FARESTROM NEW YORK.-The New York Herald of Wednesday says the dissolution of the compact which natil recently held the Erie, the New York Central and the Pennsylvania Central lines together threatens a rallway war of magnitude. To-morrow afterfurther reduction of its rates of fare, to take effect at once. The fare to Buffalo will be $5, in-stead of $6.25, as at present. This will force the New York Central to follow sult, and, as one reluction leads to another, the ultimata result is uncertain. This change in the tariff of fares which is supposed to be preliminary to a similar one in freights, is attributed to had taith on the part of the Pennsylvania Central, which, while iominally charging certain fixed intes agreed upon by the compact, has been allowing drawbacks and commissions to such an extent and in such a manuer as to virtually ignore the terms of the compact. The Pennsylvania Central will doubtless reduce its tariff nominally as well as virtually as soon as the Eric advertisements apgeous terms for the farmers and shippers, but not | u.u.r.), but it it does come, the parties first at-Vanderbill made a similar reduction of the rates of fare and freight on the same road, and it was regarded as a piece of good management at the ime, for although the experiment was costly it flustly brought the connecting and competing roads to terms.

AN ENITORS OF GENERAL ROOLSHASTICAL HISTORY FROM THE MARLIEST PRESON, WITH A GONDERSED ACCOUNT OF THE JEWS SINCE THE DESTRUCTION OF JERUSALEM. BY JOHN MARSH, D. D. A. B. BARNES & CO. Publibubes, 111 and 113 William Street, Nev

Literature takes on different forms of manifest tation from age to age. The present century is certainly peculiar in its intellectual tastes and carnest; even novels have a serious and moral vein-a philanthropic purpose, if not a Christian tendency, while a volume of sermons from Robertson, Spurgeon, Beecher, Bushnell, or even s skeptical or infidel work is as marketable by American publishers and is read with as muc avidity by the public, as a standard poet or novclist, or even as the trashy issue of the Minerva We can readily understand, therefore that "Marsh's Ecclesiastical History" has aiready passed through sixteen editions, and cujoys wide and growing popularity in all Christian communities. To the historical student, to the religious inquir prints of God in the rise, ruin and dispersion of nutions, this history furnishes an important adjunct and desideratum. There is no such commentary on Holy Writ, as human history, which in fact le but the promise or fulfillment of the Oracles of God, and the relations and connection of sacred with profano history, have employed What Josephus and Prideaux, what Moshiem and Neil are to the candidate for the ministry and the would grasp at the results without too minute intrients un investigation of prowithout a professional collation classic authorities.mediaeval that commends it more particularly for steamers, but not with cornal weapons, a defensive war, but not with cernal weapons, a defensive war but "mighty to the pulling down of strong-The dream of Constantine could not have been less prophetic if he had indeed seen a Cross in the air, bearing the verttable inscription, "Conquer by this sign." We are taught in this book how Christianity was established in the Roman Empire, its early divisions, which originated the Council of Nice, and its latter corruptions which culminated in the Reformation-the austrilies of Monachism and the baleful impositions of the Mahomedan power proselyting alike by fire and sword, and sensue license. We here trace the insidious principles and function practices of the order of Jeants, the persecution of the Waldenses, of the Hugue-nuts, the horrors of St. Bartholemew's day, and of the luquisition. We have apread before us in the Pariton struggle and the pagetmage of the Free Church first to Leyden, and thence to the wilds of America, driven from its native shores by the fron hand of religious intolerance. Dr Marsh concludes his narration with an historical account of the different seets and denominations of the present day, and missionary enterprises, first inaugurated in this country. The book is furnished with explanatory charts, tables and which are highly useful for reference. It is a book which should be in every library and

The Public Hea'th. Fear is, as is well known, a powerful co-oper ative with the causes of cholera, and we would not therefore excite any monogenery apprehension in regard to it. But its ravages on the plains in Kansas, önthe Mississippi at Memphis, and now at length upon the scabeard at New York, render it high time that our people should be alive to the necessity of precautionary measures to avoid it. It is true the city is in a much better smitary condition than it was a year ago. The streets are substantially improved, there is excellent drain age, and there are no pestilence breathing odors to smite the wayfarer at every street corner; but we would call attention to some of the plain but frequently overboked precentions which should he observed by Individuals.

Cleanliness is an Important requisite in the prevention of disease of any kind, and especially of such diseases as cholera. Not only should all filth be removed from the streets, alleys, back yards and outhouses, but the person should be kept clean. The skin is a great medium for the discharge of all unnecessary and unhealthful matter in the system, and its activity should not be impaired by a want of cleanliness, but le should rather be invigorated and better fitted for lts functions by frequent abtutions.

Overwork should be avoided. The system de bilitated by protracted labors of body or mind is predisposed to whatever disease may be prevalent; and in cases of disease the probabilities of very are very much lessened. Protracted recovery are very much lessened. Protracted labor in poorly ventilated rooms or in the sun, of long exposure to the evening dampness and chill, should be avoided as much as possible.

To housekeepers we would suggest the importance of using only fresh food. He careful in the purchase of meats, vegetables and fittles to get that which is tresh. Try to seem u in your house, a good supply of fresh air. Let all your sleeping rooms be well ventilated, but avoid damp, chil nir, especially in children's rooms.

People cannot be too much on their guard this hat weather against the use of rotten or discused fruits, the entire of which is a fertile cause of bowel complaints. Intemperance is equally to be avoided. We have not as yet had the cholers among us (if we except one report to the contacked are likely to be those who are of interperate habits and generally lucautions concern ing diet and occupation.

Mr. Lincoln's Dream.

In the course of Judge Pierrepone's avenueut in the Surratt case, he slinded, with most im pressive effect, to a dream of Mr. Lincoln, which on several occasions had occurred to him before great national columnties. This dream he had the night before his assessination, and the next day he mentioned the fact to General Grant among others, saying that he feared some great evil, and expressing a strong desire to hear from Sherman, who was then in North Carolina, and whose army was the only one not in telegraphic communication with Washington. The Washington Chronicle siya Judgo Pierrepont did not relate the dream itself; but Mr. Lincoln related it before his death, and like everything in any axy connected with that sad tragedy, it canno fall to have a most pathetic interest. He seemed to he at sea in a vessel, that was swept along hy un irresistible current toward a macletrom, from which it accused no power could save her.— Faster and faster the whirling waters swept the fated ship toward the vortex, until, looking down into the black abyes, amid the designing road of the waves, and with the sensation of a down, down, down an unfathomable depth the terrified dreamer awoke. The same terrible dream Mr. Lincoln had four times; first be fore the first battle of Bull Run, again before the second disastrons defeat at the The Observer does not state whether death was occasioned by unsound political reading or the authoriter's neglect to pay the publisher. Either might be expected to prove feat. ome to recognize the dream as a portent of

Arrival of the Beath Warrant.—Etc Meadened.

The death warrant, from thoromor Geary, in due form, bearing date of July 24th, directed to "Nuthan Carrior, Jr., Esq., High Sheriff of the county of Jofferson," authorizing and commanding him to exceute the extreme penalty of the law upon Charles Chae alias Charles Winton, arrived in this place on Saturday night tant. On Monday morning, about 9 o'leock, the Sheriff, accompanies by a friend, visited the cell of the prisoner, informing him that the warrant had been received, and would be read to him at 11 o'clock. Chase, or Charley, as he is familiarly called, remarked "atl right, they can hang me and be de-..." Haf an hour, at this time, was consumed in conversation, divided between the Sheriff, his friend, and Luarloy. Sheriff Carrier to the most him and bunner manner possible endesvored to explain to the criminal, his real position, and that it was now his duty to prepare for the awful event which would take place on the 28th of Angust. To this he replied in a disconnected, contased manner, which we will so attempt to quote, that he had been hunted down and persecuted by several people who he mentioned and whom he called names not intended for ears eliciate or polite. He also said that he had been among Indians, negroes, counterfeiters, &c., for many years, but that this was the de-dest roughest crown he ever did get into. nong him if it took all the money in the county to do it.

He asserted his entire innocence of the murder of which he had been convicted, and stated that he had never murdered any one—that his business, for many years had been that of counterfeiting—that he had the dies and tools to make counterfeit and bogus money, and that he could make it a d—d slight better than the most of the genula. It was remarked to the prisoner, that if, as in contended, his life had been sworn away by those with whom he had been sworn away by those with whom he had been assoulated, there was a Judge before whom we must all appear, whose decision was fined and lasting throughout eternity, who would cast shown the guilty and tift up the innocent. To this he replied in an excited, nervous manner: "God had nothing to do with this 'see sorape: He has been overruled by the d—d [seoundrels outside." in answer to this blasphenous expression it was suggested to him that if we took the Bible for our guide, we must believe that God knows all hings—without His knowledge a sparrow faileth not to the ground—that he counts the very hairs of our heads, and numbers the sands upon the sea shore. Seeing that the man was in a high state of ex-

Seeing that the man was in a high state of ex-citement, the Sheriff and his friend withdrew, promising him to return at eleven o'clock, with the warrant which would then be read. On the Sheriff asking him if there was any person hu de-sired to have present at the reading, he named George A. Jenks, Eeq., ohe of his counsel, Capt. Wintledd S. Barr, James Walker and others— the two latter being of the number employed to guard him. At the indicated, sheriff Carrier, his Lepnty, A. D. McPherson, George A. Jenks Esq., E. Heath Clark, Eeq., Capt. W. S. Barr, John E. Barr, John Woods, Jamer Walker, W. D. J. Marlin, Eeq., Col. W. W. Cor-bett, and James Onelow, of Pittsburgh, visited Chase in his cell, whou the warrant was read in bett, and James Onslow, of Pittsburgh, visiter Chase in his cell, when the warrant was read in quiet but clear and distinct manner. The person most interested in the document did not marife any extraordinary feeling or encotion during the reading. He shed no tears, and with the exception of a nervous twitching of his limbs, the violunt chewing of tobacco, with the constanemission of the salive, he was apparently as coas any man in the cell. We say apparently, we don't believe there was a man present who was not convinced the wretched creature, who habut a few days to live, was talking only from his mouth—that at heart he felt very different. We do not pretend to be a judge of huma.

Spence's Petroleum Burners—I respectful-ty invite the attention of all persons using out or wood as fuel, to my naw invention bearing the above title, which substitutes petroleum, petroleum tar, or other fuel hydro-carbons to produce heat as a mative power. Its successful operation has been demonstrated beyon cavil, as will be seen by the subjoined testimonisis fro disinterested parties, well known throughout the oil re-gious. The following considerations will commend it to general use. First-Its economy. It will save from 30 to 75 per cent, of the ordinary expense of cost or wood. Second—its perfect safety. There is no possibility of exond—Its purfact safety. There is no possibility of explosion—the fire being prevented from running back to the feedbr by the six blow pips surrounding the same. Third—Its universal application. It can be adapted with uqual facility and success to all kinds of portable, etationary and marine bettern, and in becometres for generating steam, under all kinds of stills, retorts, &c. Fourth—Its labor-saving novantages. After being set in operation, such is the simplicity of the process, that it can be run with perfect uniformity with but little attention. It can be as easily regulated as a kerssone lamp, and with as complete combustion. Without cularying further, I give the following extract from my "Lutters Fatent," setting forth my claims to this specific invanitors:
